There is a growing awareness of the need to develop strategies to meet the needs of the ageing population. The World Health Organization (WHO) has developed a 'Global Strategy on Ageing and Health' (WHO 1999) which aims to 'enable older people to live longer, healthier, and more active lives'. The WHO strategy is based on three pillars: 'active ageing', 'healthy ageing', and 'longevity'. Active ageing is defined as 'the process of developing and maintaining the ability to meet life's challenges'. Healthy ageing is defined as 'the process of maintaining the ability to live independently and to participate in society'. Longevity is defined as 'the process of living longer and healthier lives'.
