the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age has increased from 1.1 billion to 1.5 billion, and the number of people aged 65 and over has increased from 0.5 billion to 0.7 billion (United Nations 2002). The number of people aged 65 and over is projected to increase to 1.2 billion by 2050 (United Nations 2002).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people in the workplace. The World Health Organization (WHO) has identified the need for a 'healthy ageing' approach to the workplace (WHO 2002). The WHO defines 'healthy ageing' as 'the process of developing and maintaining the functional ability that enables older people to live the lives they want' (WHO 2002, p. 1).

The WHO has identified a number of factors that contribute to healthy ageing, including: (1) a healthy body; (2) a healthy mind; (3) a healthy social environment; and (4) a healthy environment (WHO 2002). The WHO has also identified a number of strategies for promoting healthy ageing, including: (1) promoting a healthy lifestyle; (2) providing social support; and (3) creating a healthy environment (WHO 2002).

The WHO has also identified a number of challenges to healthy ageing, including: (1) the increasing number of older people in the world; (2) the increasing number of older people who are living in poverty; and (3) the increasing number of older people who are living with chronic diseases (WHO 2002). The WHO has identified a number of strategies for addressing these challenges, including: (1) promoting a healthy lifestyle; (2) providing social support; and (3) creating a healthy environment (WHO 2002).

The WHO has also identified a number of key areas for research on healthy ageing, including: (1) the role of the workplace in healthy ageing; (2) the role of the family in healthy ageing; and (3) the role of the community in healthy ageing (WHO 2002). the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million (from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1995). The public sector has become a major employer in the UK, and this has implications for the way in which the public sector is managed and the way in which it is funded.

The public sector is a complex organisation, and it is difficult to understand how it works. The public sector is made up of many different organisations, each of which has its own aims and objectives. The public sector is also funded by the government, and this has implications for the way in which it is managed and the way in which it is funded.
