the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age has increased from 1.1 billion to 1.6 billion, and the number of people aged 65 and over has increased from 0.4 billion to 0.6 billion (United Nations, 2002). The United Nations predicts that by 2050, the number of people aged 65 and over will have increased to 1.1 billion, and the number of people under 15 years of age will have decreased to 1.1 billion (United Nations, 2002).

There are a number of factors that are likely to contribute to the increase in the number of people aged 65 and over. One of the main factors is the increase in life expectancy. In 1990, the life expectancy at birth was 47 years for men and 51 years for women. By 2050, the life expectancy at birth is predicted to be 74 years for men and 79 years for women (United Nations, 2002).

Another factor is the decrease in fertility. In 1990, the total fertility rate was 4.7 children per woman. By 2050, the total fertility rate is predicted to be 1.5 children per woman (United Nations, 2002). This decrease in fertility is due to a number of factors, including the increase in the age at which women have children, and the decrease in the number of children born to each woman.

The increase in the number of people aged 65 and over is a global phenomenon. In 1990, there were 0.4 billion people aged 65 and over in the world. By 2050, there are predicted to be 1.1 billion people aged 65 and over in the world. This increase is predicted to be most significant in the developed world, where the number of people aged 65 and over is predicted to increase from 0.2 billion to 0.6 billion (United Nations, 2002).

The increase in the number of people aged 65 and over is a challenge for many countries. In the developed world, there is a need for more social security and health care for the elderly. In the developing world, there is a need for more social security and health care for the elderly, as well as for more education and training for the young.
