the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age is expected to increase by 1.5 billion (United Nations 1994).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of children in the 1990s. The United Nations has developed the Convention on the Rights of the Child (1989) and the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) has developed the Innocent Initiative (1990). The Innocent Initiative is a global campaign to improve the lives of children and to protect them from violence, abuse, and neglect.

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of children in the 1990s. The United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) has been instrumental in this regard, and has produced a series of reports on the state of the world's children (UNICEF 1990, 1991, 1992, 1993, 1994). These reports have highlighted the need for a new approach to children's rights, and have led to the adoption of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC) in 1989.

The UNCRC is a landmark document in the history of children's rights. It sets out the rights of children, and provides a framework for the development of national legislation and policies. The Convention has been ratified by over 100 countries, and is now the most widely ratified human rights treaty in the world.

The UNCRC has led to a new focus on children's rights, and has provided a framework for the development of national legislation and policies. It has also led to a new awareness of the need to address the needs of children in the 1990s.
