the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation, 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems. The Department of Health (2000) has set out a vision for the future of mental health services, which includes a focus on prevention, early intervention and recovery.

The aim of this paper is to explore the experiences of people with mental health problems who are involved in the criminal justice system.

The paper is organized as follows. First, we discuss the prevalence of mental health problems in the criminal justice system.

Second, we discuss the challenges faced by people with mental health problems who are involved in the criminal justice system.

Third, we discuss the role of mental health professionals in the criminal justice system.

Fourth, we discuss the role of the criminal justice system in the recovery of people with mental health problems.

Fifth, we discuss the role of the criminal justice system in the prevention of mental health problems.

Sixth, we discuss the role of the criminal justice system in the early intervention of mental health problems.

Finally, we discuss the role of the criminal justice system in the recovery of people with mental health problems.

The paper concludes with a discussion of the implications of the findings for practice.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased by 1.2 million (Office for National Statistics 2000). The number of people aged 65 and over is projected to increase to 6.5 million by 2020, and the number of people aged 75 and over to 4.5 million (Office for National Statistics 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the health and social care needs of older people. The Department of Health (2000) has set out a strategy for the NHS to meet the needs of older people. The strategy is based on the following principles: (1) to ensure that older people have access to the services they need; (2) to ensure that older people are treated with respect and dignity; (3) to ensure that older people are able to live independently; (4) to ensure that older people are able to participate in decisions about their care; (5) to ensure that older people are able to live in their own homes; (6) to ensure that older people are able to live in the community; (7) to ensure that older people are able to live in the care of their families; (8) to ensure that older people are able to live in the care of the state.

The Department of Health (2000) has also set out a number of key objectives for the NHS to meet the needs of older people. These objectives are: (1) to ensure that older people have access to the services they need; (2) to ensure that older people are treated with respect and dignity; (3) to ensure that older people are able to live independently; (4) to ensure that older people are able to participate in decisions about their care; (5) to ensure that older people are able to live in their own homes; (6) to ensure that older people are able to live in the community; (7) to ensure that older people are able to live in the care of their families; (8) to ensure that older people are able to live in the care of the state.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million (1990–1999) and the number of people in the private sector has increased by 1.7 million (1990–1999).

There is a growing emphasis on the need to improve the quality of care in the public sector. This has led to a number of initiatives, including the introduction of the National Patient Safety Agency (NPSA) in 2001, the introduction of the National Clinical Audit Programme in 2002, and the introduction of the National Framework for the Quality Improvement of Health Services in 2003.

The NPSA is a non-departmental public body, established by the Department of Health in 2001. Its main function is to promote and improve patient safety in the NHS.

The NPSA has a number of key functions, including: to monitor and report on patient safety; to promote and improve patient safety; to provide advice and guidance on patient safety; and to conduct research into patient safety.

The NPSA has a number of key initiatives, including: the National Patient Safety Programme (NPSP); the National Clinical Audit Programme (NCAP); and the National Framework for the Quality Improvement of Health Services (NFQIHS).

The NPSP is a programme of work aimed at improving patient safety in the NHS. It is a multi-agency programme, involving the Department of Health, the NPSA, and a number of other organisations.

The NCAP is a programme of work aimed at improving the quality of care in the NHS. It is a multi-agency programme, involving the Department of Health, the NPSA, and a number of other organisations.

The NFQIHS is a programme of work aimed at improving the quality of care in the NHS. It is a multi-agency programme, involving the Department of Health, the NPSA, and a number of other organisations.
