the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1995 (Department of Health 1996).

There is a growing emphasis on the need to improve the efficiency of the public sector, and to ensure that the public sector is able to deliver the services that are required by the public. This has led to a number of initiatives, including the introduction of competition, the restructuring of public sector organisations, and the introduction of performance targets.

One of the main reasons for the need to improve the efficiency of the public sector is the increasing pressure on public sector budgets. This is due to a number of factors, including the increasing cost of health care, the increasing cost of education, and the increasing cost of social services.

Another reason for the need to improve the efficiency of the public sector is the increasing demand for public services. This is due to a number of factors, including the increasing population, the increasing demand for health care, and the increasing demand for education.

There are a number of ways in which the efficiency of the public sector can be improved. These include the introduction of competition, the restructuring of public sector organisations, and the introduction of performance targets.

One of the main ways in which the efficiency of the public sector can be improved is by the introduction of competition. This can be done by allowing private companies to compete for public sector contracts, or by allowing private companies to take over public sector organisations.

Another way in which the efficiency of the public sector can be improved is by the restructuring of public sector organisations. This can be done by merging public sector organisations, or by transferring public sector functions to private companies.

A third way in which the efficiency of the public sector can be improved is by the introduction of performance targets. These targets can be used to measure the performance of public sector organisations, and to ensure that they are able to deliver the services that are required by the public.

There are a number of challenges associated with improving the efficiency of the public sector. These include the need to ensure that the public sector is able to deliver the services that are required by the public, and the need to ensure that the public sector is able to operate within its budget.

Despite these challenges, there is a growing consensus that the efficiency of the public sector must be improved. This is because the public sector is a major part of the economy, and it is essential that it is able to deliver the services that are required by the public.

There is a growing emphasis on the need to improve the efficiency of the public sector, and to ensure that the public sector is able to deliver the services that are required in a cost-effective manner.

The public sector is a large and complex organisation, and it is difficult to ensure that it is able to deliver the services that are required in a cost-effective manner. There are a number of factors that can contribute to this, including the size of the organisation, the complexity of the services that it provides, and the way in which the organisation is managed.

One of the main reasons for the inefficiency of the public sector is the way in which it is managed. The public sector is often managed in a way that is based on a top-down approach, in which decisions are made by a small number of people at the top of the organisation, and then passed down to the rest of the organisation.

This approach can lead to a number of problems, including a lack of communication between different parts of the organisation, a lack of accountability, and a lack of transparency. It can also lead to a lack of innovation, as people are often discouraged from coming up with new ideas.

Another reason for the inefficiency of the public sector is the way in which it is funded. The public sector is often funded through a combination of taxes and government grants, which can lead to a number of problems, including a lack of transparency and a lack of accountability.

There are a number of ways in which the public sector can be improved, and these include: (1) improving the way in which the public sector is managed, (2) improving the way in which the public sector is funded, and (3) improving the way in which the public sector is held accountable.

One of the most important ways in which the public sector can be improved is by improving the way in which it is managed. This can be done by introducing a number of changes, including: (1) introducing a more bottom-up approach to management, (2) introducing a system of accountability, and (3) introducing a system of transparency.

Another important way in which the public sector can be improved is by improving the way in which it is funded. This can be done by introducing a number of changes, including: (1) introducing a system of transparency, (2) introducing a system of accountability, and (3) introducing a system of competition.

Finally, the public sector can be improved by improving the way in which it is held accountable. This can be done by introducing a number of changes, including: (1) introducing a system of transparency, (2) introducing a system of accountability, and (3) introducing a system of competition.

There are a number of other factors that can contribute to the inefficiency of the public sector, and these include the size of the organisation, the complexity of the services that it provides, and the way in which the organisation is managed.

The aim of these initiatives is to ensure that the public sector is able to deliver the services that are required by the public, in a cost-effective and efficient manner.

The aim of this paper is to review the literature on the impact of these initiatives on the public sector, and to discuss the implications for the future of the public sector.

The paper is organised as follows. Section 2 discusses the impact of competition on the public sector. Section 3 discusses the impact of restructuring on the public sector. Section 4 discusses the impact of performance targets on the public sector. Section 5 discusses the implications for the future of the public sector.

2. Competition

The introduction of competition into the public sector has been a major initiative in the 1990s. This has led to a number of changes in the way that public sector organisations operate, and has led to a number of improvements in the efficiency of the public sector.

One of the main reasons for the introduction of competition is the need to ensure that the public sector is able to deliver the services that are required by the public, in a cost-effective and efficient manner. This has led to a number of initiatives, including the introduction of competition, the restructuring of public sector organisations, and the introduction of performance targets.

The introduction of competition has led to a number of changes in the way that public sector organisations operate. For example, public sector organisations have been encouraged to compete for contracts, and to improve their efficiency and effectiveness. This has led to a number of improvements in the efficiency of the public sector.
