the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are undernourished has increased from 600 million to 800 million (FAO 2001). The number of people who are malnourished has increased from 1.1 billion to 1.5 billion (FAO 2001).

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the nutritional status of the world's population. The World Health Organization (WHO) has set a target of reducing the number of undernourished people in the world by 50% by the year 2015 (WHO 2001).

One of the main causes of malnutrition is the lack of access to adequate food. This is often due to poverty, which prevents people from being able to afford to buy enough food. Another cause is the lack of access to land, which prevents people from being able to grow their own food.

There are a number of ways in which the nutritional status of the world's population can be improved. One way is to increase the production of food. This can be done by increasing the area of land used for agriculture, by increasing the yield of crops, and by improving the quality of the soil.

Another way to improve the nutritional status of the world's population is to increase the access to food. This can be done by improving the distribution of food, by reducing the loss of food, and by increasing the number of people who have access to food.

There are a number of other ways in which the nutritional status of the world's population can be improved. These include increasing the education of people, improving the health care system, and increasing the income of people.

It is important to note that improving the nutritional status of the world's population is a complex task. It requires the cooperation of many different groups, including governments, the private sector, and civil society.

There is a need for more research into the causes of malnutrition and into the ways in which it can be improved. This research should take into account the social, economic, and cultural context in which malnutrition occurs.

It is hoped that the findings of this research will help to improve the nutritional status of the world's population and to reduce the number of people who are undernourished and malnourished.
