the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age is expected to increase by 1.5 billion (United Nations 1994).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of children in the world, and the United Nations has developed a series of goals for the 21st century. The first goal is to 'eradicate poverty' and the second goal is to 'achieve universal primary education' (United Nations 1994).

The United Nations has also developed a series of indicators to measure progress towards these goals. The first indicator is the 'poverty share of the population living on less than $1 a day' and the second indicator is the 'percentage of the population aged 5 years and over who are illiterate' (United Nations 1994).

The United Nations has also developed a series of targets for the 21st century. The first target is to 'halve the poverty share of the population living on less than $1 a day by the year 2015' and the second target is to 'achieve universal primary education by the year 2015' (United Nations 1994).

The United Nations has also developed a series of strategies to achieve these targets. The first strategy is to 'improve the quality of education' and the second strategy is to 'increase the number of teachers' (United Nations 1994).

The United Nations has also developed a series of policies to achieve these targets. The first policy is to 'increase the number of teachers' and the second policy is to 'improve the quality of education' (United Nations 1994).

The United Nations has also developed a series of programmes to achieve these targets. The first programme is to 'increase the number of teachers' and the second programme is to 'improve the quality of education' (United Nations 1994).

The United Nations has also developed a series of projects to achieve these targets. The first project is to 'increase the number of teachers' and the second project is to 'improve the quality of education' (United Nations 1994).

The United Nations has also developed a series of initiatives to achieve these targets. The first initiative is to 'increase the number of teachers' and the second initiative is to 'improve the quality of education' (United Nations 1994).

The United Nations has also developed a series of actions to achieve these targets. The first action is to 'increase the number of teachers' and the second action is to 'improve the quality of education' (United Nations 1994).

The United Nations has also developed a series of measures to achieve these targets. The first measure is to 'increase the number of teachers' and the second measure is to 'improve the quality of education' (United Nations 1994).

The United Nations has also developed a series of steps to achieve these targets. The first step is to 'increase the number of teachers' and the second step is to 'improve the quality of education' (United Nations 1994).
