the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age is expected to increase by 1.5 billion (United Nations 1994).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of children in the 1990s. The United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) has been instrumental in this regard, and has produced a series of reports on the state of the world's children (UNICEF 1990, 1991, 1992, 1993, 1994). These reports have highlighted the need for a new approach to children's rights, and have led to the adoption of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC) in 1989.

The UNCRC is a landmark document in the history of children's rights. It sets out the rights of children, and provides a framework for the development of national legislation and policies. The UNCRC has been ratified by over 100 countries, and is now the most widely accepted international instrument for the protection of children's rights.

The UNCRC has been a catalyst for change in the way that children are viewed, and has led to a new emphasis on children's rights. It has also led to a new focus on the needs of children, and has provided a framework for the development of national legislation and policies.
