There is a growing awareness of the need to develop strategies to meet the needs of the ageing population. The Department of Health (2000) has published a strategy for ageing, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of older people. The strategy is based on the following principles: (1) to ensure that older people have the opportunity to live independently and actively; (2) to ensure that older people have access to the services and support they need; (3) to ensure that older people are protected from abuse and neglect; and (4) to ensure that older people are consulted on the services and support they need.

The Department of Health (2000) has also published a strategy for mental health, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of people with mental health problems. The strategy is based on the following principles: (1) to ensure that people with mental health problems have the opportunity to live independently and actively; (2) to ensure that people with mental health problems have access to the services and support they need; (3) to ensure that people with mental health problems are protected from abuse and neglect; and (4) to ensure that people with mental health problems are consulted on the services and support they need.

The Department of Health (2000) has also published a strategy for dementia, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of people with dementia. The strategy is based on the following principles: (1) to ensure that people with dementia have the opportunity to live independently and actively; (2) to ensure that people with dementia have access to the services and support they need; (3) to ensure that people with dementia are protected from abuse and neglect; and (4) to ensure that people with dementia are consulted on the services and support they need.

The Department of Health (2000) has also published a strategy for Parkinson's disease, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of people with Parkinson's disease. The strategy is based on the following principles: (1) to ensure that people with Parkinson's disease have the opportunity to live independently and actively; (2) to ensure that people with Parkinson's disease have access to the services and support they need; (3) to ensure that people with Parkinson's disease are protected from abuse and neglect; and (4) to ensure that people with Parkinson's disease are consulted on the services and support they need.

The Department of Health (2000) has also published a strategy for multiple sclerosis, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of people with multiple sclerosis. The strategy is based on the following principles: (1) to ensure that people with multiple sclerosis have the opportunity to live independently and actively; (2) to ensure that people with multiple sclerosis have access to the services and support they need; (3) to ensure that people with multiple sclerosis are protected from abuse and neglect; and (4) to ensure that people with multiple sclerosis are consulted on the services and support they need.

The Department of Health (2000) has also published a strategy for epilepsy, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of people with epilepsy. The strategy is based on the following principles: (1) to ensure that people with epilepsy have the opportunity to live independently and actively; (2) to ensure that people with epilepsy have access to the services and support they need; (3) to ensure that people with epilepsy are protected from abuse and neglect; and (4) to ensure that people with epilepsy are consulted on the services and support they need.

The Department of Health (2000) has also published a strategy for autism, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of people with autism. The strategy is based on the following principles: (1) to ensure that people with autism have the opportunity to live independently and actively; (2) to ensure that people with autism have access to the services and support they need; (3) to ensure that people with autism are protected from abuse and neglect; and (4) to ensure that people with autism are consulted on the services and support they need.

The Department of Health (2000) has also published a strategy for Asperger's syndrome, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of people with Asperger's syndrome. The strategy is based on the following principles: (1) to ensure that people with Asperger's syndrome have the opportunity to live independently and actively; (2) to ensure that people with Asperger's syndrome have access to the services and support they need; (3) to ensure that people with Asperger's syndrome are protected from abuse and neglect; and (4) to ensure that people with Asperger's syndrome are consulted on the services and support they need.

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people in the community. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for older people, which sets out a vision for the future of older people's services. The strategy is based on the principle of 'active ageing', which is the idea that older people should be able to participate in the activities of everyday life and to contribute to the community. The strategy also sets out a number of key objectives, including: to improve the health and well-being of older people; to ensure that older people have access to the services they need; and to promote the independence and dignity of older people.

The strategy is a key document for the development of older people's services in the UK. It provides a framework for the development of policies and services for older people, and it sets out a number of key objectives that should be achieved by the year 2010. the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are undernourished has increased from 600 million to 800 million (FAO 1996). The number of people who are malnourished has increased from 1.2 billion to 1.5 billion (FAO 1996).

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the nutritional status of the world's population. The World Health Organization (WHO) has set a goal of reducing the number of people who are undernourished by 50% by the year 2010 (WHO 1996).

One of the main reasons for the increase in the number of people who are undernourished is the rapid population growth in the developing world. The population of the world is expected to reach 6 billion by the year 2000 (UN 1996).

Another reason for the increase in the number of people who are undernourished is the rapid increase in the number of people who are living in poverty. The number of people who are living in poverty has increased from 1 billion in 1980 to 2 billion in 1990 (UN 1996).

There are a number of factors that contribute to the increase in the number of people who are undernourished. These factors include:

- Rapid population growth in the developing world.
- Rapid increase in the number of people who are living in poverty.
- Lack of access to food and water.
- Lack of access to health care.
- Lack of access to education.

There are a number of ways in which the nutritional status of the world's population can be improved. These ways include:

- Improving access to food and water.
- Improving access to health care.
- Improving access to education.
- Improving the quality of food and water.
- Improving the quality of health care.

There are a number of organizations that are working to improve the nutritional status of the world's population. These organizations include:

- The World Health Organization (WHO).
- The United Nations (UN).
- The Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO).
- The International Labour Organization (ILO).
- The World Bank.

There are a number of challenges that must be overcome in order to improve the nutritional status of the world's population. These challenges include:

- Rapid population growth in the developing world.
- Rapid increase in the number of people who are living in poverty.
- Lack of access to food and water.
- Lack of access to health care.
- Lack of access to education.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1999 (Department of Health 2000).

There is a growing emphasis on the need to improve the efficiency of the public sector, and to ensure that the public sector is able to deliver the best possible value for money (Department of Health 2000).

One of the ways in which the public sector can improve its efficiency is by reducing the number of people who are employed in the public sector. This can be done by a number of methods, including the following:

- Reducing the number of people who are employed in the public sector by a number of methods, including the following:

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1995 (Department of Health 1996).

There is a growing emphasis on the need to improve the quality of care in the public sector. The Department of Health (1996) has set out a number of key objectives for the public sector, including the need to improve the quality of care, to reduce waiting times, to improve the efficiency of the system, and to improve the satisfaction of patients and staff. The Department of Health (1996) has also set out a number of key principles for the public sector, including the need to be patient-centred, to be transparent, to be accountable, and to be fair.
