the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age has increased by 1.2 billion, from 1.1 billion in 1980 to 2.3 billion in 1999 (United Nations 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of children in the 21st century. The United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (1989) has been signed by 112 countries, and the United Nations Millennium Declaration (2000) has set out a series of goals for the year 2015, including the goal of 'improving the lives of the world's children'.

The United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (1989) is a landmark document in the history of children's rights. It sets out a series of rights for children, including the right to life, the right to a name, the right to a family, the right to education, and the right to be heard. The Convention has been signed by 112 countries, and it is now the most widely ratified human rights treaty in the world.

The United Nations Millennium Declaration (2000) is a landmark document in the history of the United Nations. It sets out a series of goals for the year 2015, including the goal of 'improving the lives of the world's children'. The Declaration has been signed by all 191 member states of the United Nations, and it is now the most widely adopted document in the history of the United Nations.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million (from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1999). The public sector has become a major employer in the UK, and this has implications for the way in which the public sector is managed and the way in which it is funded.

The public sector is a complex and diverse entity, and it is difficult to define it precisely. However, it can be described as the part of the economy that is owned and controlled by the state. It includes a wide range of activities, from the provision of health care and education to the provision of social housing and the operation of public transport.

The public sector is a major source of employment in the UK, and it is also a major source of revenue for the state. The public sector is funded by a combination of taxes and government borrowing. The public sector is also subject to a number of constraints, including the need to provide services at a reasonable cost and the need to be accountable to the public.
